WHAT'S WHAT AND WHY CONCERNING CARMEL ORGANIZATIONS

ARTS AND CRAFTS LITTLE THEATER

A committee from the Little Theater players met with the regular members of the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts last Wednesday night to discuss ways and means for the building of a Little Theater at the back and adjoining the present building, with a frontage on Monte Verde street.

Dr. Burton included the following in his report:

The building to be 36x80 feet; the natural slope of the ground for flooring capacity, with two exits on either side; a stage with heating apparatus provided with suitable furnace; orchestra pit and sufficient equipment, dressing rooms, etc. Seating capacity to be increased to four hundred and fifty. Dr. Burton stated that the committee had made inquiries and had found that five thousand dollars, possibly fifty-five hundred should cover the cost.

Perry Newberry talked of ways of financing the project, and made many practical suggestions.

Richard Bentinck spoke of the dramatic section (which includes the Little Theater) having become part and parcel of the Arts and Crafts and that their efforts and aims would always be for the building up of that organization. He suggested that plays, concerts and other programs of the highest order be arranged at frequent intervals. Other features, such as a first-class movie and an entertainment on the order of Comedies were also suggested.

A committee was appointed to confer further with the representatives of the dramatic section and were given power to act in advancing the project.

A meeting has been called for this evening (Thursday) for the purpose of placing the matter finally before the members of the club and getting a general expression of opinion on the feasibility of this plan. The officers of this organization are Mrs. Mary Hand, president, and De Neale Morgan, secretary. Mrs. Hand has served the Arts and Crafts club faithfully for fourteen years, and it is largely through her hard work and executive ability that the club has reached its present degree of efficiency. Mrs. Hand and the other officers have worked all these years with a large debt hanging over them, and at last the debt is paid and the property free from incumbrance. It is only natural that these ladies would want the assurance that in undertaking such an enlargement to their activities they should receive the backing of the entire community. In fact, it should be a community theater in every sense of the word, and it is to be hoped that all those interested in this movement will join this section without delay. A large attendance of the members of the Arts and Crafts club is expected tonight.

NATIONAL LEAGUE OF AMERICAN PEN WOMEN

A preliminary meeting was held in Miss De Neale Morgan's studio last Friday with a view of forming a local chapter of the National League of American Pen

Women. Tentative plans were made with a view to becoming part of the national organization. The desirability of local writers and artists forming some sort of a league which would put them in closer touch with the eastern markets was emphasized. Notice will be given of the next meeting.

PROGRESS OF CHORAL SOCIETY

CAESAR AND GLEOPATRA WILL SOON BE GIVEN A PUBLIC READING

A PUBLIC READING of "Caesar and Cleopatra" will be given on Friday evening, March 24, at 8 o'clock, at Arts and Crafts hall. The announced purpose of the reading of the play is to interest the entire community in its production, and in particular to stimulate interest in individual roles.

The cast will not be chosen until ample opportunity has been given for everyone desirous of playing any special part to signify such desire. Applications will be given every proper consideration and tryouts arranged for whenever necessary.

There are twenty three excellent speaking parts in the drama. The characters speak in prose, in the language of today, not in blank verse or in archaic English. The lines of even the shorter "bits" are clever and interesting. The stage direction announces that applications for the longer roles of Caesar, Cleopatra, Rufio, Britannus, Apollodoros, Ftata, Ptolemy and Pothinus will be received up to April 1. Minor parts will be open for a somewhat longer period. It is desired that the entire cast, aside from extras, will be chosen and individual coaching well under way by May 1.

Additions last week to the producing staff for "Caesar and Cleopatra," were Louis Josselyn and George J. Seidenbeck in the electrical department, Florence Sharon Brown in the department of costume design, and Mue Harris Anson on the publicity staff. Ruth (Mrs. Edward G.) Kuster will serve as prompter for the production and will assist in stage management.

It is expected that the staff personnel will be completed within the coming week.

Vagrant Impressions of The Pine Nut

THE PINE CONE and the local postoffice have been snowed under with an avalanche of letters from boys who have read the Bulletin article and who have evidently taken it seriously. Some of the boys are in the navy, some are veterans of the late war, and one of them is a "boy" of sixty, who demands seven wives, and gives Biblical quotations to support his theory that many is better than some.

One young man is sensitive about his name and, while deploring the fact that he walks with a limp, insists that it is not chronic. He doesn't pretend to be beautiful but proudly asserts that he is a "good man (as men go)."

The young 60-year-old sends much socialistic propaganda and declares his willingness to spend his honeymoon on hiking expeditions. His accumulation of years is offset by a blonde mustache. He sets the age limit of his wives at thirty, but he likes 'em young, "full of spunk and fighting spirit to help me in the fight for the kingdom of heaven on earth, and the younger they are the more spunk they generally have." He is willing to pay his fare from Oakland, but doesn't want to be under heavy hotel expenses while here and will only come "when invited by somebody as a visitor."

One letter gives the names of all the eligible single marines on one of our battleships.

The general impression conveyed by these communications is, "Ladies, step up lively and take your choice."

We have no criticism to make of these boys. Most of the letters have been sincere—in some cases rather manly—but we would like to help straighten out the situation as best we can, so that the lads will come to know the real Carmel and to love it as we do.

The Pine Nut hereby butts in (as usual).

Carmel, Cal., Mar. 16, 1922.

To the Patrons of the Bulletin's Matrimonial Bureau:

Hello, you Jacks and Charlies and Georges and Jameses and all the rest of Uncle Sam's boys who are writing to Carmel for wives. You've got your wires twisted somehow. Don't you know that we "unattached ladies" of Carmel are most of us old enough to be your mothers? We have our cats, and our gardens, and our canaries and are quite contented with our Adam-less state. That San Francisco Bulletin has given you the wrong dope entirely. We are just plain, simple, ordinary people who love green trees and sparkling water better than electric signs and fourteen-story buildings, and we like to light our houses with candles, and we become real enthusiastic over a sandpile, so you'd probably not like us at all for steady company. We don't go to dances, and we don't care for jazz music and we are not movie-fans (not many of us) and, worst of all, when we get together we talk of books and art and Ibsen dramas, and you'd feel ill-at-ease and out-of-place among us. You're just nice healthy-minded kids that like to play tricks on each other and stow away three good squares a day, and you'd feel mortified to death if you had a wife that talked about Scriabin or "Divine Afflatuses". Now, bear up! It is the truth! That's what you'd have to come to if any of us accepted you.

Then you wouldn't like the way we dress. You'd hate to introduce a Batiked lady (you'll have to look that up in the ship's library) with a Grecian fillet (that means riband) in her hair, to your best buddy,—and as for

MANY IMPROVEMENTS ARE PLANNED FOR THE OUT-DOOR THEATER

A force of mechanics will soon be busy at the Forest Theater. It was decided to tear up the buckled and much worn tongue-and-groove stage floor and replace it with ordinary surfaced pine boards that will shed the winter's water. It is also probable that stairways direct from the dressing rooms to the stage will be built. W. T. Kibbler, C. S. Greene and L. Gottfried have the matter in hand.

Another matter which will have to receive the serious attention of the theater management is reforestation. Slowly, relentlessly, inevitably, year by year, the back-stage pines are disappearing. In the years gone by these large trees have served as a natural sounding board, and many have noted that with the passing of the trees it becomes more and more difficult to hear out front. It is a question of beauty as well as utility that the planting of trees be taken up at once. When the trees are gone, it will be too late.

Rittenberg Recommended

A telegram has been received from Wm. Ritschel recommending Henry Rittenberg of New York as an instructor for the Summer School of Art held each summer in Carmel under the direction of Arts and Crafts Club. Mr. Rittenberg is a "Chase" pupil and is a painter of portraits, landscapes and still life. No action has been taken on account of the usual difficulties in the housing problem, which of necessity limits the number of pupils that can be accommodated.

Miss McQueen McMillan is in Los Angeles visiting her sister, Mrs. Frank Chapin.

ANTI-BONDITES HAVE THEIR SAY

In this issue of the Pine Cone the champions of those who are opposing the proposed bond issue to erect a city hall and to purchase fire protective apparatus for our city have their day in court—the court of public opinion. The antis are to be congratulated in having such able advocates as Harry S. Nye, A. H. Roseboom and Grace MacGowan Cook. No doubt these citizens have gone thoroughly into every detail of the questions involved.

To obtain an expression of opinion, regardless of the legal requirement to carry or defeat the proposition, it is incumbent on every registered citizen to vote on April 10.

NOW FOR BATTLE OF BALLOTS

Registration for the city election on April 10 closed last Saturday with over four hundred names on the roll. Next Tuesday is the last day upon which candidates may file applications to have their names placed on the ballot.

To date the following citizens have been listed to contest for city trustees:

For the two-year term—Harrison W. Askew and Perry Newberry.

For the four-year term—William T. Kibbler, George M. Dewart, Charles H. Yates, Thomas L. Edler, William T. Dummage and Helen W. Parkes.

The city treasurer and city clerk hold over until 1924.

LET THE PEOPLE EXPRESS THEMSELVES

Says Charles H. Randall: "After two years of National prohibition, the wettest state in the union—New Jersey—harassed as it is as a suburb of the largest cities in America, throws up the alcoholic sponge! It comes in with the other forty-five states which have ratified the prohibition amendment, leaving only two out in the 'wet.'"

It is the opinion of many public men and women that were the Volstead act amended so as to permit the making and sale of beer and light wines there would be an end of bootlegging and other violations of the prohibition law.

WOODMAN SPARE THAT TREE!

Reprinted from a late edition of the Pine Cone.

"A well-known lady of Carmel, in a desperate attempt to save a tree which was in imminent danger of the woodsman's ax finally threatened to climb the tree. Then you wouldn't dare cut it down," said she. We'll say they wouldn't."

TO THE PINE CONE OFFICE BOY: May I add a bit more to that story? As not long-ago it was told to me, By "Sam", the bad man, who wanted the tree.

It was a nice, large tree, full of wood, you see,

And stood near enough the road to be considered a menace to life. Quoth he,

"I'll fell, cut up and burn that tree!" But standing there was his neighbor, ***dee.

"Pardon me,"—and she said—said she,

"Don't you dare cut down that tree! I'll climb right up in the top, maybe!"

"Well, do it right now then, Sweet-heart," said he,

"For that tree, comes down in the morning!"

LIMERICKS ON LIVING ALONE

By One Who Knows

Dawn:
Heigh ho, no one is surly,
When I rise early
To greet the blushing dawn.
I don't worry or
Feel in a hurry
To put my work dress on.

My Schedule:
My clock is not my master,
It never orders me
To move one bit the faster,
Points it eight or three.
I count the time by wishes,
And go about my work,
Doing meals and dishes
Just like a common shirk.
I sometimes get my breakfast,
And find it's afternoon,
It does not hurt my system,
The next day comes so soon.

Shopping List:
One head of lettuce,
A carrot and a beet,
Three onions, some sugar,
A small piece of meat.
Three eggs and two apples,
Of milk, one small can.
One quarter pound of butter,
Pound flour and a banan.
Ten cents potatoes,
Small slice of cheese,
One loaf of bread,
Can of young peas.

Menu:
That little knuckle,
Makes me chuckle.
It has lasted thirteen days.
First I stewed it,
Cut and hewed it,
And served it in various ways.
Today I have hashed it,
Seasoned and mashed it,
And made a little croquette,
Tomorrow I'll group it,
Boil it and soup it,
There's flavor and food in it yet.

Midnight:
Burn, blink, you blessed light,
Shine, gleam, till past midnight,
You can't bother Jack,
You don't bother Jill,
Tis I, myself, who pays the bill.
Who's Afraid?
What's that? Who's there?
Goodness me! What a scare!
Will the squeak ever die
In that old wicker chair?

Tragedy:
In every life must fall some rain,
The thought that gives me greatest pain,
Is that I, forevermore,
Must live alone or learn I snore.
As a test of memory, read the following once and then attempt to repeat it.

"So she went into the garden to cut a cabbage leaf to make an apple pie. At the same time a great she-bear, coming up the street, popped his head into the shop: "What! No Soap?" So he died; and she very prudently married the barber. And there were present the picanninies and the picklelilies and the jobillies and the Grand Panjandrum himself, with a little round button at the top. And they all fell to playing the game of Catch-as-catch-can, till the gunpowder ran out of the heels of their boots.

Contributed by a grateful landlady
as a reward of forbearance.

The rain it came down and his bed it did wet;

And his shoes and his socks, and his nightie, you bet.

In the morning all's well,
But shortly there'll be an apartment
To Let!"

Futurist Sounds of Spring!

A sulphur yellow chord of the eleventh
Twitches aside the countenance;

Blasts of a dead chrysanthemum—
Blurt!

Whispers of mauve in a sow's ear;
Snort of a daffodil.

A Parting Thought.

Has her left we all alone?

All is in readiness for the special St. Patrick's Day production by the Carmel Repertory Players at the Manzanita Theater tomorrow night.

Special settings and costumes have been made for the three plays and suitable light effects have been worked out. Original songs have been composed for Kathleen ni Houlihan by Edward G. Kuster, and music for the opening of each play has been written by the same author on genuine Celtic themes.

Persons coming after 8:30, even with tickets purchased during the advance sale, will not be seated until the intermission following the opening play. This rule will be strictly enforced.

All seats are reserved and may be obtained at Cabbages and Kings.

PIONEER PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Kate H. Hatton, for nearly half a century a resident of this section, has passed away. After a long illness she died last Saturday night at the home of her daughter, Dr. Sarah H. MacAuley, in Monterey.

During her long residence here she made an untold number of friends in all walks of life, and was especially esteemed for her deeds of charity and neighborly solicitude and kindness.

Never a man injured or a friend ill for miles around that Mother Hatton was not there to minister and advise and sacrifice. She has earned the great reward.

Miss Kate Harney (Hatton) was born at historic Fort Sumter, South Carolina, in 1851, and came to this state in 1875, where she married Wm. Hatton, and the couple then settled in the Carmel Valley, where, up to a short time ago, she has resided ever since.

The deceased is survived by the following children: Mrs. Will E. Martin, Dr. Sarah MacAuley, Miss Harriet Hatton, Edward G. Hatton, William Hatton, Frank D. Hatton, and Howard Hatton. A brother, J. M. Harney, resides at Watsonville.

The largely attended funeral was held from the old mission church, where for so many years Mrs. Hatton had worshiped. Interment was in the Catholic cemetery in Monterey.

Preparing for the Mission Play at the Forest Theater

The artistic and thorough manner in which Garnet Holme intends to put on the Mission Play may be judged by the people with whom he will surround himself for this production. Week end visitors here, to look over the situation, included, besides Mr. Holme, Miss Katherine Edson of San Francisco, Dan Tothoroh of Berkeley, and Gerstle Mack of San Francisco.

Miss Edson is an interpretive dancer of varied experience, who will have charge of the dancing in the Holme play. She was for three seasons with the Russian ballet.

Dan Tothoroh is connected with the Greek Theater in Berkeley. Recently he won the $300 prize for the best full-length play written by a Californian. It is called "Wild Birds."

Gerstle Mack, who is a stage designer, is enthusiastic about the possibilities of the Forest Theater stage.

MORE TIME ON ASSESSMENTS

The city trustees met on Tuesday evening. A communication from Mrs. A. D. Signor, requesting permission to erect a sign at Ocean avenue and Camino Real, was read and referred to the city planning commission.

Walter M. Basham applied for the bathhouse privilege for the summer, agreeing to put the building in repair and pay $75 for the season. His application was granted.

The time for payment of the assessment on Ocean avenue improvement was extended from March 21st to March 28th at 6 o'clock.

CARMEL RESIDENT IS INJURED AT MONTEREY

Mrs. John K. Turner (Adriana Spadoni) while crossing Alvarado St., Monterey, Tuesday afternoon, in front of the Strand theater, was knocked down by an auto driven by Joe Duckworth. Mrs. Turner suffered a lacerated knee and a severe shock.

Public Reading of "Antony and Cleopatra"

Marian Boke and Messrs. Kuster and Glassell, associated in the direction of "Caesar and Cleopatra," will give a public reading of the play tomorrow night at eight thirty o'clock, in Arts and Crafts Hall. Everyone interested in making the Forest Theater play a product of united community effort is invited to attend.

Applications for the roles of Rufio, Pothinus, Britannus, Caesar, Cleopatra, Appollodorus, Theodotus and Etateeta will be received by the stage direction until April 1st. Applications to play one or more of the remaining speaking parts will be received not later than April 15th. It is hoped that the complete cast, except for the group scenes, which are splendidly picturesque and colorful, will be selected by May 1st.

Announcement is made that $30,000 has been placed at the disposal of the National Association of Audubon Societies to aid teachers and pupils in the study of wild birds. Children will be instructed to build bird boxes, feed birds in winter, to learn the names of the common birds in their communities, and will be instructed in the value of birds to mankind.

Advertise in the Pine Cone.

A Trinity of Protestants

By A. H. ROSEBOOM

After reading the article in a recent issue of "The Pine Cone" about "Ephemeral Fog", which among other matters asks for opinions from readers, "May I not" express an humble opinion.

I wish particularly to call attention to the paragraph headed "Plenty of Water", which I think is not exactly correct. We have in the City of Carmel somewhere in the neighborhood of three or four thousand lots—call it 3500—there are ten (10) hydrants—this will give one hydrant to about 350 lots.

How many hydrants are there on San Carlos, Dolores, Lincoln, Monte Verde, or Casanova streets?

Most of our water supply is through 2-inch pipes—a "booster pump" if it could be connected with a large part of our water system (and it could not be so connected) would pull up the whole system of pipes in that neighborhood and the street would be full of old busted up pipe. There is not plenty of water. As to pressure: the pressure on Ocean Avenue is undoubtedly very light, but how about the streets mentioned? There is plenty of pressure on a large part of them, especially in the lower part of the city.

What the city needs is better water supply—not "booster pumps" unless they could be run to pump some of the hot air out of people advocating a bond issue for any such fire fighting apparatus.

Again, the "booster pump" would have to be taken care of and run by an expert, which would be quite an expense.

If the motor-driven auxiliary could be driven by hot air, the question could be easily solved.

Again, I reiterate the statement—that what we need is a better water supply.

It is sheer nonsense to refer to such cities as Atlanta, San Jose, Santa Barbara, Boston, Chicago, et al., they are all cities having a large or comparatively large population and I very much doubt if their "booster pumps" are supplied with 2-inch water mains.

Give us more water and less hot air. Vote against issuing bonds.

Personally Conducted

An attractive folder just off the Pine Cone Press gives the itinerary of a European tour chaperoned by Minna St-el Harper. The party sails June 7, and the menu includes the Passion Play.

Mrs. Harper and Miss Mabel Spick, et have returned to Berkeley after a week spent at the Carmel section of their North Berkeley school.

Highlands Inn will serve a special St. Patrick's dinner between 6 and 7 o'clock tomorrow evening.

By HARRY S. NYE

At your solicitation, I will place the following arguments against the proposed bond issue before the people of Carmel; answering the "Cold Logic" editorial of last week's issue:

1. Permanency of Proposed Fire-Fighting Apparatus. As compared with the things for which bonds should properly be issued—public buildings, schools, streets, sewers, boulevard and park systems, or our own sand-dunes—any fire-fighting apparatus is ephemeral.

2. Safeguarding the Future. The proposed plan is certainly no safeguard with streets as at present, water supply as it is now. I doubt the efficiency of the motor-truck with a volunteer department. I believe four more hand-trucks—like the one we now have—placed in advantageous positions about the city, would give better service at one-fifth the cost.

3. Plenty of Water. There is lack of water in the mains, lack of mains of proper size to make hydrant connections. The ten hydrants in Carmel, even if efficient with a booster pump, are not even a beginning of a proper system. Four-fifths of the town is not covered by hydrants; half of that can not be given hydrants, because of the size of the mains. Until we have new mains, we can not regard water as a safe-guard against fires in Carmel.

4. Money Thrown Away. The $360 rental paid the water company for 10 hydrants that it is admitted have been of no value to the town, has nothing to do with the bond issue. It should have a bearing on the campaign for re-election of trustees who paid this money out to the water company, knowing the town was getting nothing in return; but it is a poor argument for voting bonds. And the statement that "we must continue to pay" this unjust and useless charge is absurd. That $360 already paid is "dead money"; but there's no need of killing any more good money continuing these senseless iron posts.

5. Present Quarters Inadequate. The town hall is adequate for present needs. Seldom are the twelve seats for spectators outside the hall all occupied. Any one of those times when more than that number were present, the trustees might have held the session in a hall. A steel cabinet for city records should be installed.

6. Is It Good Business? The question of whether any citizen of Carmel would live in such a fashion is answered by the fact that a great many do. And they don't consider it good business to borrow the money to build more magnificently than they can afford. And Carmel's city trustees are not elected to "set the example" so "that all prospective builders may have an object lesson before them." Trustees are not elected because they can "emphasize the beautiful".

7. Unused Property. The block purchased by the city will not injure by lying fallow a few years. Nothing need be done with it.

8. Housing Uncertainties for the Future. The city is asking no charity of the owner of the present city hall. Neither he, nor anyone else I have heard from before, believes he is doing any charity. And there are no other reasons mentioned for worrying about the future housing of our government; no reasons that were worth mentioning; or answering.

9. Only One Solution. The author of "Cold Logic" is entirely mistaken. Fire Protection Apparatus may be purchased at any time by a tax assessment. No bonds need be voted for that. And as there is no present need for a city hall, the solution of both is to vote the bonds down.

10. Bond Issue Inevitable. When the "inevitable" time comes, we can consider the matter.

11. Already Found a Way. "Cold Logic" here merely states that the city attorney favors the bonds; not that he can not suggest a better way to raise money for fire-fighting, as suggested by Mr. Newberry against the bonds.

12. Bond Issue Stands Alone. Yes, but it may not fall alone. The voters of Carmel have the right to ask every candidate where he stands on that

By GRACE MCGOWAN COOKE

I do not agree with your position—I believe it was yours—that considering where the candidates who will come before the people at the next election for trustees, as to which were in favor of a bond issue to build a city hall, or against such an issue, would be the question.

I certainly am not going to vote for any candidate on his shape, or the color of his hair. What I want to know is his position on public questions that concern the welfare of Carmel, and the most pressing question of the sort now before our people is this bond issue. What you said about "befogging" and "ephemeral fog" sounded impressive, but to me anyhow, it didn't mean anything.

And your "Cold logic" person writes well, too, but his remarks about Atlanta, Georgia, and other cities, buying quantities of Booster pumps, left me cold. Naturally towns that have the money to buy these things, and the hydrant service to make them available as fire protection, and the streets to haul them to fires over, will invest. I should buy an electric range if I had the money. As it is, I do my cooking on a coal oil stove. One Booster pump, with no streets to haul it over, no adequate number of fire hydrants to cover the town, would still leave a chance for a fire to start and do its worst out where the Booster pump couldn't reach it on account of having no hydrant near enough—and that would be most of Carmel, under present conditions. That "Cold logic" sounded to me like the folder the Booster pump people send out to possible purchasers. I wonder if it was taken from that authoritative source.

I was positively thrilled by the statement that "Last summer all Carmel held its breath till the rains came." I tell you a community that can do a stunt like that has a future in providing crews for submarines. But seriously, I have been here nearly fourteen years, and I never met with any of this breath holding uneasiness. We are in better shape as to fire than we were in those early days when the town was all in the brush.

No, no, be honest Mr. Pine Cone—be sincere. We're lined up on opposite sides of a question, and that question is, "To boom—or not to boom." That's what all the "Onward and upward" talk means—booming. There are two ways of going up—like a tree from the ground, on your own roots, and going up to stay; and the other way of going up like a rocket, in which there's no choice but to come down like the stick.

If you ask me, there's been a good deal of the latter spirit in this feverish furor to push the growth of Carmel. And when you really do line up the boomers and non-boomers in any place you'll almost inevitably find that the booming element have a personal profit in some way on the boom—unimproved land whose price they wish to boost, a business that does obviously profit by a boom, or one which they think may indirectly profit by it.

To such I would say in the friendliest spirit in the world, that I've been through one land boom before I came to California, and I know the end thereof. That's why I'm sorry to see people try to thrust booming methods on Carmel. It's easy to say that we now have a low tax rate in Carmel. It would be a lot harder to prove it. Maybe some people have I know I haven't.

Now, if this be fog—make the most of it. I have spoken.

The candidate must answer. I have no doubt the bond issue, requiring a two-thirds vote, will lose; but what safety is there for Carmel if men and women advocating these increased taxes and special assessments are placed in control of the city's affairs? We voters want to know where every candidate stands.

WHAT'S WHAT AND WHY CONCERNING CARMEL'S ORGANIZATIONS

bers are growing and everybody is enjoying these "singfests." It is to be hoped that Mr. Cator will soon have recovered from his severe illness and once more assume direction.

RESULT OF CIVIC LEAGUE'S QUERIES The present Carmel Civic League is really a revival of the old organization which was a department of the Carmel Club of the Arts and Crafts and whose members worked so hard a few years ago to clean up the town. They placed signs on the streets, furnished rubbish barrels, established the old watering trough and put seats around the town for the convenience of passer-by. Recently the club has taken on new life and has started an aggressive fight to abolish machine-made ugliness. To that end they sent out questionnaires and have received some interesting replies. In the main the answers indicated that the ideals of the league are approved and the thought of the town becoming a business city was disparaged. Those who are interested in the betterment of civic conditions would find a large field for their activities in identifying themselves with this organization.

HILLSIDE READING CIRCLE The Hillside Reading Circle has just finished reading "Great Expectations." Miscellaneous readings will be given at the next one or two meetings and after that one of Dickens' works will be resumed. The club is just a little friendly neighborhood reading circle—no dues, no refreshments. It is very democratic, the general public being urged to attend. Hotel visitors and strangers are particularly invited. Meetings are held at the Culbertson-Johnson studio, Seventh and Lincoln. Leonard Merrick's unique short stories are at present engaging the attention of the members.

COUNTRY CLUB The Carmel Country Club is by no means defunct. The delay in constructing the club house has been due to negotiations which the board of directors have been carrying on to obtain the necessary loan under the most favorable conditions. As soon as the financial details have been worked out the building will be rushed to completion.

MANZANITA CLUB Henry Larouette has been re-elected president of Manzanita Club. They have had no meeting of any importance lately, so that any future activities or plans are "up in the air."

COMMUNITY CLUB Dr. C. A. McCollom, as president, announces the memorial fountain about seventy per cent completed. Funds are lacking and the work is temporarily suspended. Donations from the public spirited will be most acceptable.

BOYS' CLUB The club for the older boys has suspended its meetings pending Choral Society rehearsals. The Juniors are meeting on Wednesdays at present. Miss Ida Johnson reports that much interest being shown in these clubs and that the boys are still able to devour their customary allowance of sweets.

THINKERS!

What are the greatest things in our lives?

Happiness and health.

How can we obtain those great things?

Happiness comes to us who help one another.

By giving better things with which to do our daily duties.

Health comes by bathing—keeping our bodies clean—and to keep clean is to use a Fuller Friction Shower Bath Brush. Also by using Fuller Brushes as your daily servants in the home.

Page 64, current March number of the Ladies' Home Journal, describes the Fuller Dustless Fan Mop for hardwood floors.

The Fuller man will visit Carmel-by-the-Sea, starting tomorrow, Friday, to call on the householders and present them with a handy brush for use in the home, Free of Charge.

Vagrant Impressions of the Pine Nut

shoes.—you'd never find a pair of high heels in the town.

Regarding that little matter of transportation, why we just simply couldn't do it. The best we can do is to offer you a pot of orange marmalade from the pantry shelf, and we can't guarantee many encores to that stunt, for by-and-by there won't be no more.

You'd better take another think and write to us (we're really very nice old ladies) and tell us you were mistaken, and then be real good sports and apologize, and say, fellows, don't forget to write just as you'd want the other fellow to write to your mother or your sister.

We don't blame you—not very much—for sizing up the situation wrong. That letter to the Bulletin was written by some one who wanted a little fun at our expense, but the joke's really on you, because you believed it.

You see, it is so unusual to find a community of people who all love beauty and who do some of the real, big, helpful, lovely things in life, such as painting pictures or writing books and plays or composing great music, that the people in large cities who can only be storekeepers or street car conductors or Bank Presidents can't understand what it means to live all your life without caring to make money—they can't understand why a woman would rather sit out with the cool sea breeze blowing in her face and work all day to put on canvas that dark green color that comes in the curl of a wave, than to sit in a stuffy little office and pound a typewriter. The people who don't like to do the things we do call us "freaks". Then the newspapers get hold of it, and they try to be funny about it, so there you are.

I wonder where that person who wrote that article for the Bulletin got the idea that we had no interesting men here. Why, we have all kinds of men, tall and short, fat and thin, poets and painters, and—just men—mechanics, plumbers, carpenters and the like. To tell you the truth though, I've never seen a long-haired or a cadaverous looking man in the town,—except one—and he can't help it—his hair just grows that way, but it would be just the same whether he lived in Alameda or San Francisco. Our men, and we have lots of 'em, too, all eat and drink and sleep just like any other humans. Perhaps you wouldn't believe that our greatest musicians cut their own firewood. They have to keep warm. You can't play a Chopin Sonata with cold fingers. They usually go out and cut up a cord or two before breakfast and because they're real hospitable, they always insist on the visitors helping them just to make them feel at home.

And then, where do you boys get all that stuff, "red-blooded"? Of course you're all that, or you wouldn't have been over in France "making the world safe for Democracy". We appreciated that, lots, and if you ever stray into Carmel, we'll invite you to dinner, (if we're sure we'll have enough after we've fed the cat), and we'll take you on a wild orgy of the Studio exhibits on a Saturday afternoon, (two to four), and if you like dramatics you can take part in our big annual play that is given every year in our beautiful outdoor Forest Theater. If you're ill or hurt or heartsick or homesick, you'll find the people of Carmel eager to dig up and help you out. Some one will offer you a tent, and some one else will furnish you with a stove and bed, and then a little light work on the woodpiles will be provided and soon you'll have a real place here, and then some day when you meet the little girl that you really ought to have, you'll be glad that we've been honest enough to put you straight and that we didn't yield to the temptation of snapping you up on your generous offers.

If ever you come to Carmel, drop in to the Pine Cone office, and shake hands, and then some of us will take you down and show you our mile of beautiful beach, and we'll point out a green tree or two, and by that time you'll be just as bad as we are,—and just think of it,—you'll be a freak, too. But take it from me, fellows, it's worth it, even if you do get writ up in the papers.

We don't know the name of the author of that letter that got you all stirred up with longings for a grate fire and home cooking, but it sometimes happens that a lonely, disappointed soul from the great outside world drifts in here and finds a temporary anchorage, and she can't get over the fact all of a sudden that there is nothing in the world that can take the place of a man, so she sends out a pitiful little appeal for "Just Some One". If I knew who she was, I'd turn over your letters to her, and with such a brave showing she'd certainly be able to make a choice, but as long as I don't know, she'll probably have to do like the rest of us,—get a cat and order a new supply of tea.

No, dear boys. We don't want husbands. If we did, we'd have 'em. In fact, some of us have already had some, and those who have are dubious and those who haven't have had "chances." I'm sure we all love you all, but we don't want to marry you. We can't even be sisters to you, but you can call us "Mother", if you like. Your friend and well-wisher,

—THE PINE NUT.
